Personal Project: Design Descriptive Narrative

For this project, your goal is to come up with a creative design for your personal project.

Read the notes about Web Site Design.

Create a clear descriptive narrative about the layout design of your web pages. Include topics such as the following.

1) What pages will you have in your web site?
    a. What will you use for the name of each page?

        Home page, Japanese Section/Learning/Language, Future Expectaitions, Academic Honors, Community Service

    b. Briefly describe the contents of each page.

        Home page, an introduction to the portfolio

        Japanese section, what I know and what I am learning about the Japanese language

        Future expectations, what courses I am taking and what courses I will take, planned college

        Academic Honors, a list of recently obtained achievements from my high school career and beginnings of my college career.

        Community Service, extra activities that I am apart of and take part in

2) What is the structure for your web pages?
    a. What sections will you have on each page?

        Home, welcome, what this web page is, why this page exists, overview of the different areas

        Japanese section, current knowledge, current working, later workings, overall goal

Future expectations, major, currently taken and taking college courses, planned college, planned college courses.

Highschool Honors, list of honors I've obtained

Community service, key club service, 4-H service, county council service, and extra areas of community service

b. Will you use columns?

Yes, columns will be useful. I can put images of my actions next to the text of them. Not to mention, column look nicer than a paragraph that takes up the entire screen. I do not like the way bootstrap works, as I prefer to not rely on outside sources for my code. I will more than likely use flex columns unless issues arise.

c. What HTML tags will you use?

!DOCTYPE html
Html
Head
Title
Style
Body
Div
Nav
Header
Footer
Ul
Li
Dl
Dt
dd

d. Will all pages use the same design?

Not exactly. They will all use the same type of navigation bar, so things don't get confusing when moving page to page. The overall structure will be similar, but it may change depending on what I need to type. The color scheme may change depending on what color I feel represents that area.

3) What look will you use?
   a. What graphics will show.

      Images of my courses, images of my Japanese writing, images of my schools, images of my community service

   b. What is the color scheme?

      So far, green for community service, red for Japanese, cyan for home, orange for honors, blue for future expectations

      If this does not look the way I think it should, I will have all of them using a gray/white scheme for sleekness. Although, I do want the pages to have individuality. I may change to a gray/white theme that implements the mentioned colors.

   c. What is your base font, will other fonts and text sizes be implemented.

      One font I do want to try and integrate is harashi, in the Japanese section. It may make the characters look better on the page. Other than that, I will more than likely use the standard font or a serif. Otherwise, I will find more fonts as I work.
